

Name: _____

Informal Breaking News

Public Speaking

Ten Eyck

For your third speech this semester, you will give an informal breaking news speech. As the event that you are reporting on is of high importance and great emotional impact, you are a news reporter caught in the middle of it all with little time to prepare. Your breaking news should be of important political, safety, or entertainment interest, and should be something that is “happening even as we speak.” Some topics could be the aftermath of a recent natural disaster, a police standoff with a suspect, a sudden and career altering sports injury, or even a baby panda being born at the local zoo.

You may draw on real or fictional events for your inspiration, the important factors are to convey the emotional merits of the moment and that you are bringing the public vital news that they can’t get anywhere else.

An outline and a visual aid are mandatory on the due date of Wednesday, 2/24/10. 2-3 minutes in length.

Name: _____

Informal Breaking News

Public Speaking

Ten Eyck

For your third speech this semester, you will give an informal breaking news speech. As the event that you are reporting on is of high importance and great emotional impact, you are a news reporter caught in the middle of it all with little time to prepare. Your breaking news should be of important political, safety, or entertainment interest, and should be something that is “happening even as we speak.” Some topics could be the aftermath of a recent natural disaster, a police standoff with a suspect, a sudden and career altering sports injury, or even a baby panda being born at the local zoo.

You may draw on real or fictional events for your inspiration, the important factors are to convey the emotional merits of the moment and that you are bringing the public vital news that they can’t get anywhere else.

An outline and a visual aid are mandatory on the due date of Wednesday, 2/24/10. 2-3 minutes in length.

Name: _____

Informal Breaking News

Public Speaking

Ten Eyck

For your third speech this semester, you will give an informal breaking news speech. As the event that you are reporting on is of high importance and great emotional impact, you are a news reporter caught in the middle of it all with little time to prepare. Your breaking news should be of important political, safety, or entertainment interest, and should be something that is “happening even as we speak.” Some topics could be the aftermath of a recent natural disaster, a police standoff with a suspect, a sudden and career altering sports injury, or even a baby panda being born at the local zoo.

You may draw on real or fictional events for your inspiration, the important factors are to convey the emotional merits of the moment and that you are bringing the public vital news that they can’t get anywhere else.

An outline and a visual aid are mandatory on the due date of Wednesday, 2/24/10. 2-3 minutes in length.